Accountability Statement

The Accountability Report of the Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission (Commission) for the year ended March 31, 2016 is prepared pursuant to the Finance Act and government policies and guidelines. These authorities require the reporting of outcomes against the Commission's Statement of Mandate for the fiscal year just ended. The reporting of the Commission's outcomes necessarily includes estimates, judgments and opinions by the Commission management.

I acknowledge that this Accountability Report is the responsibility of Commission management. The report is, to the extent possible, a complete and accurate representation of outcomes relative to the goals and priorities set out in the Commission's 2015-2016 Statement of Mandate.

Christine Hanson

Director and CEO Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission

Message from the Director and CEO

I am pleased to present the Accountability Report of the Commission for fiscal year 2015-2016. This report provides a summary of the Commission's accomplishments in fulfilling its commitments under the 2015-2016 Statement of Mandate.

The Commission maintains a commitment to service excellence and the application of best practices in the protection and promotion of human rights in Nova Scotia. The Commission has adopted restorative approaches to dispute resolution which has resulted in the elimination of a back log of complaints. This has allowed the Commission to devote more resources to education and promotion efforts.

The Commission's activities are highlighted in this report. The 2015-2016 fiscal year has been a year of transition for the Commission, including internal restructuring and the hiring of a new Director and CEO. As a result, the three year strategic goals defined in 2012 were extended for an extra year. Many of the goals outlined in the 2012-2015 Strategic Plan were implemented during the 2015-2016 fiscal year, including:

- The Commission continued work on the Community Conversations and Consumer Equity programs commenced in 2013-2014. Community Conversations program was officially launched in the Preston area on February 9, 2016, with a report back to the community scheduled for early in the next fiscal year.
- Commission staff re-engaged with partners and external stakeholders and communities to increase awareness and knowledge about restorative approaches and practices.
- The Commission continues to build upon partnerships with the business community, including sector associations, chambers of commerce and other stakeholders. This is expected to advance work in consumer equity by supporting businesses to become educated and prevent issues of consumer racial profiling.
- The Commission continues to operate in a fiscally sustainable manner.

Stakeholder engagement, collaboration and capacity building among partners and staff continue to improve the Commission's ability to address existing and emerging human rights issues.

My sincere thanks go to the staff, management and Commissioners for their commitment and hard work to ensure the best possible service to the public throughout this period.

Christine Hanson
Director and CEO Nova Scotia Human Rights Commission

Annual Report under Section 18 of the Public Interest Disclosure of Wrongdoing Act

The Public Interest Disclosure of Wrongdoing Act was proclaimed into law on December 20, 2011.

The Act provides for government employees to be able to come forward if they reasonably believe that a wrongdoing has been committed or is about to be committed and they are acting in good faith.

The Act also protects employees who do disclose from reprisals, by enabling them to lay a complaint of reprisal with the Labor Board.

A Wrongdoing for the purposes of the Act is:

- a) a contravention of provincial or federal laws or regulations
- b) a misuse or gross mismanagement of public funds or assets
- c) an act or omission that creates an imminent risk of a substantial and specific danger to the life, health or safety of persons or the environment, or
- d) directing or counselling someone to commit a wrongdoing
